To the members of the EITI Board,

Re: Options for changes to Requirement 2.4 on contract disclosures

We are writing to urge the EITI Board to strengthen the EITI Standard to require the publication of contracts and licenses which provide the terms attached to the exploitation of oil gas and mineral resources. Contracts and licenses are vitally important documents that lie at the heart of several important issues spanning the entire scope of EITI, including exploration and production rights; taxes, transfers and other payments; infrastructure and barter arrangements; and social spending.

In the six years since the EITI Standard was changed to “encourage” contract disclosure by member countries, the world has changed. According to the International Monetary Fund, the publication of contracts is now established as an international norm alongside project-level disclosure of resource revenues.^[1] Contract disclosure is required for extractive industry clients of World Bank’s International Finance Corporation and Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency and for petroleum sector clients of the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development.^[2] It has also been endorsed by the United Nations, International Bar Association, the B-Team, the OECD, and the International Council of Mining and Metals.^[3]

Uptake within the EITI community of practice has been strong. Already 31 of 51 implementing countries have already disclosed contracts and 24 have laws requiring disclosure.^[4] Within the private sector, at least 16 EITI supporting companies have made statements supporting contract disclosure. This includes seven out of the 10 extractive industries companies on the EITI Board.^[5]

The EITI Standard should keep pace with the leading edge of practice of its members and with global norms. If the EITI Standard fails to change with the times, this would threaten the credibility of EITI as a governance initiative, and the credibility of those organizations who support and promote it.

We therefore strongly recommend that the EITI Board protect EITI’s global leadership and reputation, by strengthening the Standard to require contract disclosure.

Sincerely,
